Notes:

The price of the breakfast bar top includes either support poles (brass or aluminium) or finishing panels to exposed cabinet backs (where the breakfast bar is supported by cabinets).

Please note that the butler's sink can only be fitted into a solid wood worktop. However, it is possible to combine different types of worktops, so you could have a sink area with a wooden worktop and the rest with a granite top.

The above prices include: worktops, all cabinet and work-tops trims, co-ordinating end panels (where relevant) continuous plinth, splash-back and/or back panel (if desired).

* Standard doors include:

- Plain doors in natural wood
- Plain doors painted or with high gloss finish
- Panelled doors in natural wood only.

All standard base units are 2" deep and c.3" high and wall units are 1 1/8" deep and c.2½" high. Column units are approximately 7½" high. Units can be made which vary from the standard where these may be necessary to fit a particular space, or when replicating full-size bespoke units.

Lighting

- An additional 'pelmet' may be fitted under the wall units, for concealed lighting.

ELF Kitchens - Free-standing units

Most standard ELF cabinets may be combined to form freestanding units. Instead of the traditional plinth mounting, one or more units are combined (to a maximum width of 4") and then placed within a hand-waxed lightwood Shaker-style frame.

Drawers and/or doors may be painted to create a pleasing contrast with the natural wood frame (see photograph below right). To price these units simply add together the cost of the individual cabinets and request Shaker framework on the order form. It is also possible to combine units, including the double tall display unit to make a modern dresser which can then be combined with other, fitted kitchen units (see photograph on the left..

Dresser £80

This combination £90

The kitchen below shows several interesting features. Firstly the shallow mid-height unit on the back wall combines standard wall units with shallow drawers to create a unit that gives interest in a room that has no other units. Additional display space has been created on the left-hand wall with glass shelves on aluminium supports. Also shown, the hanging pot rack in natural wood (also available in aluminium), ideal above a centre island, and our unique revolving shelf unit with wire grid and towel rails on the reverse. (Price as shown £520).

ELF Kitchens - Additional Features

- You can allow for washing machines or other white goods by leaving a space and having a spanning worktop at no extra cost. If you wish the white goods to be at the end of a run, there is an additional cost for the end panel and/or supports for the worktop.
- Breakfast bars. In a larger kitchen you may include a breakfast bar. This may be a simple extension to the depth of the cabinets or a freestanding extension to the worktop (see below left). The bar may be lower than the worktop and run along the back of cabinetry or be fitted to a centre island (see below right). Finally, a glass shelf can be added above a standard worktop where the cabinets allow access for seating (see bottom photo). Breakfast bars may be any shape including curves.

Cost as shown £400

As shown £510

This kitchen is part of an "American loft" setting, and includes several specially commissioned pieces.

- You may choose split-level worktops. For instance, you may decide on a lower cooking area flanked by standard height cabinets (price of kitchen below, £535).

- In a large kitchen you may wish to include an island unit. Below are a few examples of islands in different styles and finishes, showing some of the ways different units can be combined to create a piece that becomes an important feature of the kitchen.

ELF Kitchens - Planning your kitchen

Having studied the available options, decide which style of kitchen you want. This will dictate the type of units and accessories you choose. For instance, a Butler sink may look right in a traditional country-style kitchen, but wrong with hi-tech stainless steel. You may already have an Aga, or other freestanding appliances you wish to integrate. Carefully measure your room, noting the position and size of any doors and windows (remember to measure the height of windows from the ground if relevant). Choose from the full range of ELF units and decide on the arrangement that best suits your room. Remember that we can supply cabinets in different dimensions where these may be necessary to fill a space or sit flush into an alcove. Some made-to-measure units may also be necessary if you would like us to create a replica of your own full-size kitchen.

Once you have decided on your layout, simply add together the cost of the individual units in the finish you require, including ovens/hobs/sinks, and fill in the details on the order form (or send an email). The cost of trim, continuous plinth, end-panels where necessary, and any matching back panels are included in the cost.

You may already have clear ideas for the design of your kitchen. If not, try looking through a few books or magazines from the newsstand. If you find something not listed in our catalogue, which you wish to include, please ask. Many items first requested as "one-offs", we now offer as standard units. We also design kitchens for very small spaces (see right. £190 complete)

If you experience any difficulty with your plan, why not send us a rough sketch of your room, indicating dimensions and giving details of any existing items to be included (Aga, fridge, etc.)? Let us know the style of units you would like and leave the planning to us. Typically, we would send you two sets of costed plans with detailed explanations. Further alterations can be made and samples supplied when necessary. This service is free and without obligation.

Your completed ELF Kitchen comes fully finished and ready to take pride of place in your Dolls House.

Our kitchens are also available in 1/24th scale (see separate section on website)

We also offer a range of bespoke units with fixed doors, which because they obviously entail less work, cost up to a third less than our standard units. Full details on the website .
